It was Roosevelt who had split the Republican Party by running against President William Howard Taft in the presidential election of 1912, and by so doing may well have handed Wilson the presidency. Now Roosevelt, having repaired his relations with the Republicans, was, at sixty, their likely candidate for president in 1920.

Woodrow Wilson and Theodore Roosevelt always seem to rank in the top 3rd of Presidential surveys. Yet their activist campaigns and manipulation of the electorate in 1912 more closely resemble the Socialist candidate Debs and his discarded supporter Bill Haywood than Republican candidate and sitting President Taft.

Chace displays the nuances of each candidate--the fact that Wilson oscillated between Jeffersonian and reformer, the way Teddy Roosevelt shifted leftward going into 1912, Taft's commitment to a reformist conservatism, and Debs' deep patriotism. Indeed, the 1912 election presented 4 different visions of what American
