THE FOUNDING FISH. A blue-chip tour of the American shad from McPhee (Annals of the Former World, 1998, etc.), maestro of the extended essay, if not the fly rod. Suitably, and lucky for readers, there isn't a dry patch in this story of a fish and its homewaters. It's owlsh, reflective, full of sustaining information you had no idea you wanted to know, but also warm and full of McPhee, a shad fisherman, with rod and dart and fly, of long standing.
